One of Coward's later plays, A Song at Twilight is an amusing, but ultimately haunting focus on Hugo Latymer who has spent his whole life lying about who he really is. Giving too much away would spoil the play's denouement, but let's just say that Carlotta – with whom Hugo had an affair over 20 years ago – arrives at Hugo's hotel room, welcomed by his wife, with revelations about his sexual and emotional past that she threatens to reveal to the world.

BBC Radio 4 Extra - Noel Coward - A Song at Twilight

Just a song a twilight, when the lights are low, And the flickering shadows softly come and go, Tho' the heart be weary, sad the day and long, Still to us at twilight comes Love's old song, Comes Love's old sweet song. Even today we hear Love's song of yore, Deep in our hearts it dwells forevermore. Footsteps may falter, weary grow the way, Still we can hear it at the close of day.
