Covering the intricate facets of America's most important democratic tradition, this book serves as an important resource to understand how citizens' views are translated into governmental action.

Following World War I, political commentator Walter Lippmann worried that citizens

increasingly

held inaccurate

and misinformed

beliefs because of the way

information was

produced,

circulated, and

received in a

mass-mediated

society.

Lippmann dubbed

process “the manufacture of

consent.” A more

familiar term

for such large-

scale persuasion

would be

propaganda. In

Weapons of
