The fact that education plays an important role in human development is often ignored. This is a shame, because it's this value that is often most important. Education can help people develop economically, socially, and intellectually. Further, it's not just individuals who benefit from education. Entire communities benefit.

Education has a modernizing influence on values, beliefs and behaviours which make human beings more development-oriented. Viewed from the modernization theory, education is called upon to re-orientate and/or suppress beliefs, attitudes and values which tend to obstruct the initiation of the modernization process.
