He became well-known for his popular and acclaimed crime and thriller novels, but Leroux also wrote poetry and short fiction. His most famous work, Le Fantôme de l'Opéra (The Phantom of the Opera), was inspired by a tour of the cellars at the Paris Opera, and published in 1911. The story has been adapted for film and, most notably, for Andrew Lloyd Webber's long-running musical.

Most people, at some stage of their life, will have seen The Phantom of the Opera either on film or possibly on stage - so why bother to read the book? The answer is a simple one - because it is a fantastic book. Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical is only based on the book so expect lots (and I mean lots) of differences to the show.

First things first, this is the Phantom of the Opera story contained within. But the presentation is unfair on the listing. As you can see from the photos it's HUGE and is more like a script book than a novel. The listing makes it seem as though it's a really nice, leather-like or old fashioned covered classic.

The Opera ghost really existed. He was not, as was long believed, a creature of the imagination of the artists, the superstition of the managers, or a product of the absurd and impressionable brains of the young ladies of the ballet, their mothers, the box-keepers, the cloak-room attendants or the concierge. Yes, he existed in flesh and blood, although he assumed the complete appearance of a real phantom; that is to say, of a spectral shade.
