Political Theory & Political Science

Political Theory is a distinct field within the discipline of political science.

Political theorists tend to focus more on theoretical claims rather than empirical claims about the nature of the politics.

Normative political theory is concerned with questions about such concepts as justice,

In other words, science is an instrument for discovering new knowledge and developing new thoughts and new ways of thinking. The same is also true of Political Science. It too is changing; it too is growing and developing constantly, as new facts are discovered and new theories are expounded. As I have explained in a chapter of this book, even in Pakistan Political Science has changed, though its progress is not so fast as in the developed countries of the West.
