The Galdrabók (Icelandic Book of Magic) is an Icelandic grimoire dated to ca. 1600. It is a small manuscript containing a collection of 47 spells and sigils/staves. The grimoire was compiled by four people, possibly starting in the late 16th century and going on until the mid-17th century.

Galdrabók - Wikipedia

The Galdrabok is essentially composed of two kinds of spells: a groups of spells working by means of prayer formula, invoking higher powers and by which the magical end is effected indirectly. Only a small number of spells in the Galdrabok (8 in total) fall into this category.

The so-called Galdrabók, or "Book of Magic," is the single most important document for understanding the practice of magic in late medieval Iceland. It is especially important in that it gives a unique insight into the various religio-magical elements that went into a synthetic national magical tradition in Iceland at the time of its compilation.

The Vegvisir (Icelandic Vegvísir, "That Which Shows the Way;" pronounced "VEGG-vee-seer") is a symbol described only in one modern Icelandic collection of spells, the so-called Huld manuscript. That book has nothing more than this one sentence to say about it: "If this sign is carried, one will never lose one's way in storms or bad weather, even when the way is not known."

The Vegvisir - Norse Mythology for Smart People

Gullveig is a female god to the Norse. She stands between the Æsir and Vanir. According to the Völuspá she was in the hall of Odin where the Æsir tried to kill her with a spear. She was burnt three times and she was reborn three times and when she was reborn she started seiðr and became Heiðr.
